Dear Hiring Manager,

I am very excited to apply for the Director, Partner Solutions Engineering EMEA role at Cloudflare.

Throughout my career, and most recently at VMware by Broadcom, I have focused on building and scaling Sales Engineering organizations that support both direct and partner-led go-to-market models. A key part of my role has been enabling partners to operate as effective extensions of the technical sales organization, ensuring consistency, quality, and scalability in customer engagement.

At VMware, I led initiatives that are closely aligned with this role, including the development of structured partner enablement frameworks, technical readiness programs, and data-driven performance systems. These initiatives enabled partners to independently position and deliver solutions, reduced reliance on internal teams, and accelerated partner-led deal execution.

I have also worked extensively with global system integrators, strategic partners, and regional ecosystems, supporting complex enterprise opportunities and ensuring alignment between partner capabilities, sales strategy, and product positioning.

The opportunity at Cloudflare strongly resonates with my experience, particularly the focus on scaling partner-driven revenue through strong technical enablement and building a high-performing Partner Solutions Engineering organization across EMEA.

I would welcome the opportunity to bring my experience in partner enablement, Sales Engineering leadership, and ecosystem scaling to Cloudflare.

Kind regards,
Markus Klein
